

Hazara University on record:

REVISED - LIST OF CLONED JOURNALS

For preparation of this list help taken:

The list is prepared by the Directorate Quality Enhancement Hazara University, consulting various websites and domains alongwith some journals personally identified by the HU faculty/researchers/director Research/Director QE and taking help from Research Gate and other publishing platforms. The efforts made focused to present the fraudulent journals (whether clone, Hijacked-clone, predatory, unethical sale/purchase of publishers etc) under three headings CLONE and H-CLONED. For an easy approach it has been tried that the web-domains or links of each “genuine-journal” as well of the “fraudulent journal” are provided in the list. Though many of the domains now either do not exist or closed down. However, for ensuring the authenticity of a paper, the relevant website can reveal where the paper is published; in genuine or in clone? Website of the published paper shall be compared with the above list (if the journal is among the list).

All faculty, researchers, graduate and under-graduate students are to avoid publishing in these journals.

All administrative/management/scrutiny committees/DTRC convener/members will judge the publication verification/consideration matters in view of this list, in order to remove/reject/not-consider any paper based on its publishing date (i.e. date of print-publishing of the relevant issue and volume).

39.	Title: Journal of Chemical Health Risks Language : English Publisher : Islamic Azad University ISSN : 2251-6719 EISSN: 2251-6727 URL : https://jchr.damghan.iau.ir/	Title: Journal of Chemical Health Risks Language : English Publisher: NA ISSN : NA E_ISSN: 2251-6727 URL : https://jchr.org/index.php/JCHR/index (2024-04-30) Cautionary Notice: Journal Under Review. PSIref has identified concerns regarding a journal that appears to be mimicking the identity of the established Iranian journal, "Journal of Chemical Health Risks" (ISSN 2251-6719, ESSN 2251-6727). Observations Include: 1) Website Concerns: A website (https://jchr.org/index.php/JCHR/) has been noted for its deceptive similarities to the genuine journal. It uses cover images, icons, and logos similar to those of the original "Journal of Chemical Health Risks." 2) ISSN Misrepresentation: Although the clone does not display the ISSN prominently, it misleadingly links to Scimago (https://www.scimagojr.com/journalsearch.php?q=21100912214), Scopus (https://www.scopus.com/sourceid/21100912214), DOAJ (https://doaj.org/toc/2251-6719), and the ISSN Portal (https://portal.issn.org/resource/ISSN/2251-6727) that are associated with the legitimate journal. 3) DOI and Submission Discrepancies: Articles are being submitted to the Crossref repository under the container name "Journal of Chemical Health Risks" using DOI prefixes "10.52783/jchr." and "10.53555/jchr." Authentic Journal Information: The genuine "Journal of Chemical Health Risks" is accessible at http://sanad.iau.ir/en and it's profile is listed on PSIref at https://www.psiref.com/periodicals/116061738/journal-of-chemical-health-risks . We advise caution and recommend that researchers and readers verify the authenticity of any publications claiming to be from the "Journal of Chemical Health Risks" before engagement. It is suggested to avoid any involvement with this cloned/hijacked journal and its contents until further clarity is achieved. For further questions or concerns, please reach out to support@PSIref.com .

PREDATORY AND FRADULENT JOURNALS

118.	Webology ISSN: 1735-188X Website: https://www.webology.org/	Webology (ISSN 1735-188X) is a fraudulent or predatory journal. While it was originally a legitimate academic journal, it has faced severe criticism in recent years due to the following issues: • Scopus Discontinuation: The journal was indexed in the reputable Scopus database, but that coverage was officially discontinued after 2021. • Editorial Red Flags: Observers have pointed out major issues with the editorial board. For example, the listed Editor-in-Chief has been alleged to be a fictitious person. • Predatory Practices: Following a change in ownership, the journal's standards drastically declined. It has drawn heavy criticism for accepting articles too quickly without rigorous peer review and for publishing papers on wildly varying topics outside of its original scope. • Legitimate Status (2004–2021): Webology was founded in 2004 by the University of Tehran Press. For years, it was a respected, peer-reviewed open-access journal focusing on the World Wide Web and information science. • Shift to Predatory Practices (Late 2021–2022): Following its removal from official indices, the journal allegedly saw a massive, disproportionate increase in published papers and special issues. It began exhibiting classic predatory red flags, such as heavil. Academic institutions and research councils widely consider Webology a predatory or deceptive publication.
119.	International Journal of Advanced Computer Science and Applications (IJACSA) ISSN: 2156-5570 (Online), 2158-107X (Print) Publisher: Science and Information (SAI) Organization Country: UK Web: https://thesai.org/Publications/IJACSA https://jms.thesai.org/submit/ijacsa	The "International Journal of Advanced Computer Science and Applications (IJACSA)" occupies a gray area in academic publishing. It is indexed in databases like Scopus and Web of Science, but it is also widely flagged by the academic community for questionable publishing practices. Community Concerns & Risks: • Predatory Lists: The publisher, The Science and Information (SAI) Organization, has been controversially included on unverified/archived lists of potential predatory publishers (often referred to as "Beall's List"). • Editorial Practices: Critics often point to its rapid review cycles and aggressive promotional emails as classic red flags of a profit-driven, open-access model rather than a traditional academic society journal. • DOAJ Status: Although previously listed in the Directory of Open Access Journals (DOAJ), it was delisted in 2017 and is not currently listed there. Before submitting, you should consult with your academic advisor or institutional library, as some universities and higher education commissions (like in Pakistan) do not accept papers from this journal due to these predatory concerns. Note: Academic Standing & Indexing:

		• Indexing: It is currently listed in Scopus and has a presence in the Web of Science Emerging Sources Citation Index. Acceptance: While it requires payment for open-access publication, it does maintain a peer-review process, claiming an acceptance rate of roughly 15-29%.
120.	Journal of Education and Practice ISSN 222-288X TWO JOURNALS EXIST WITH THE SAME NAME & ISSN with different websites and publishers (1). Publisher CARI Journals Website: https://carijournals.org/journals/JEP  (2). Publisher: The International Institute for Science, Technology and Education (IISTE) Website: https://iiste.org/Journals/index.php/JEP 	The Journal of Education and Practice, is widely considered to be a predatory journal. It frequently faces scrutiny within the academic community for questionable publishing practices. The hallmarks of this journal include the following factors: • Publisher Reputation: IISTE (the publisher) was widely flagged on academic watchlists (like Jeffrey Beall’s original list of predatory publishers) for operating with inadequate peer review and aggressive solicitation of articles. • Editorial Standards: Predatory journals often prioritize rapid publication and page fees over strict, rigorous peer review. • Falsification of Indexing: While the journal claims to be indexed in various places, it lacks impact factors from highly respected indexing agencies (like Clarivate's Web of Science/Journal Citation Reports). While it is not. Recommendation: If you are a researcher, student, or academic, it is generally advised to avoid submitting your work to this journal or relying on its articles for rigorous academic research.

Humanities & Social Sciences Reviews (HSSR) ISSN: 2395-6518 (eISSN) Publisher: Maya Global Education Society / GIAP Journals Country: India Website: https://mgesjournals.com/hssr Started in: 2013			Based on available evidence, Humanities & Social Sciences Reviews (HSSR) appeared as genuine journal that existed and operated as a real scholarly publication, but laterly predatory practices came into limelight and is now having problematic publication history and should not currently be considered a high-quality or reputable journal. Hence it is widely considered a predatory or questionable journal in academic circles. Coverage discontinued by Scopus from 2020 onward.

Journal of Carcinogenesis	0974-6773	Journal of Carcinogenesis ISSN: 0974-6773 (PRINT) 1477-3163 (ONLINE) PUBLISHERS, SPONSORS & AFFILIATIONS: CARCINOGENESIS	Suspected Predatory (2024-06-23) Cautionary Notice: Journal Under Review. This journal, previously published by Wolter Kluwer's Medknow, is currently under review at PSiref. As of 2022, the journal is said to be managed by a new publisher, Carcinogenesis Press. We have found no records in the ISSN Transfer repository to confirm this change in management, which

			PRESS , BIOMED CENTRAL (BMC) , CARCINOGENESIS FOUNDATION , MEDKNOW	raises concerns about the legitimacy of the new publisher. Community feedback and observed publishing practices have raised several concerns that suggest potential predatory characteristics. These concerns include: 1) Citation Manipulation: There have been reported instances of citation manipulation. For more details on one such example, see PubPeer (https://pubpeer.com/publications/9B2EFC02BC89D3CC3D0A766B6DFCA8). 2) DOI Inconsistencies: Publications in this journal after 2021 display DOIs that falsely suggest MEDKNOW as the publisher, despite its no longer being affiliated. These DOIs (with a 10.4103 prefix) do not match the declared new publisher and are not registered/found within the doi.org database. 3) Misleading Publishing Claims: PDFs from the journal state they are published by MEDKNOW "on behalf of" Carcinogenesis Press, a relationship for which there is no verified evidence or official communication. 4) Lack of Metadata Submission: There has been a notable failure to submit publication metadata to the Crossref repository since the change in publisher. 5) ISSN Transfer Concerns: No records of ISSN publisher transfer have been submitted, further complicating the verification of the journal's current management status. Due to these issues, the journal has been labeled as "Suspected Predatory Journal" pending further investigation. We urge readers to approach the journal's content post-2021 with heightened skepticism, caution, and critical analysis, particularly for papers published from 2022 onward. LIST OF HIJACKED-CLONE-JOURNALS

Hijacked journals usually exist in the form of ‘cloned’ websites that appear similar to those of the legitimate journals, but contain subtle changes in the web domain that go unnoticed at first glance. While in instances it is noted that correspondence with the Editor/Chief Editor(s) of the original journals are captured midway and reply receives [back] from the fake emails referring author(s) to the hijacked web-links.

PalArch's Journal of Archaeology of Egypt/Egyptology	1567-214X	PalArch's Journal of Archaeology of Egypt/Egyptology https://archives.palarch.nl/index.php/jae 1567-214X PalArch's Journal of Archaeology of Egypt/Egyptology is widely considered predatory because it was hijacked. While it began as a legitimate Dutch journal, it was cloned by fraudulent entities that used the legitimate title to solicit articles and charge publication fees while bypassing rigorous peer review. The cloned, fake version of the journal is characterized by several major red flags: • Journal Hijacking: Fraudulent publishers took over the name and ISSN of the originally reputable PalArch Foundation publication. The legitimate PalArch Foundation website is now often associated with cloned versions. • Out-of-Scope Publishing: The journal frequently published vast amounts of off-topic, unrelated research. For example, despite focusing on Egyptology, it has notoriously published papers on engineering, business, and ICT. • Massive Spam Campaigns: The operators aggressively spammed academics globally, soliciting submissions in exchange for Article Processing Charges (APCs). • Scopus Discontinuation: The journal's fake and low-quality publishing practices prompted the citation database Scopus to discontinue indexing it. Because of these deceptive practices, researchers and academic institutions warn against publishing in or citing this journal to avoid damaging academic integrity.

				as much as possible by exploiting their (no longer existing) Scopus indexing as long as possible. The existing journal to be avoided and be sure they are not indexed in Scopus and they don't have an impact factor (since they are not indexed in Clarivate's indexes (ESCI, SCIE or SSCI) which can be checked here https://mjl.clarivate.com/home Solution is to stay away from this journal. The publisher has changed, and they still use the migration letters logo, which is from the previous publisher. Moreover, they accept articles without any revision process. Also, they mention they are in the Scopus and WOS; however, they were removed from the Scopus index in 2022. The journal became predatory, according accordingly, but it's not obvious yet. Plus, checking its website; one can see every type of paper except issues related to migration. I hope this answer can help. The journal was sold in mid-2023 to a somewhat predatory publishing group. Without knowing what was coming, I and a group of scholars published a special double-reviewed issue (January 2023), which is now in limbo. It is so sad to see one of the locomotive journals in the field turn into a fraudulent business in which our work has also faded...

Concerns have been raised about its publishing practices following a change in management. Previously published by Dougmar Publishing Group, there is no record in the ISSN Transfer repository indicating a formal transfer to the new publisher, Green Publication, which reportedly took over in 2023 with the DOI prefix 10.53555. Reports and community feedback have highlighted several issues that may indicate predatory publishing practices. These include: 1) Citation Manipulation: Instances of citation manipulation have been noted, with one example available for review at PubPeer (https://pubpeer.com/publications/9B2EFC02BC89D3CC3D0A766B6DFCA8). 2) Misleading Advertising: The journal's website currently suggests it is indexed in Scopus; however, this indexing was reportedly removed due to publication concerns. 3) ISSN Transfer Issues: No official records confirming a publisher transfer are available, raising questions about the legitimacy of the current publisher. 4) Increased Publication Output: There has been a notable increase in publication output under the new management, diverging from previous publication patterns. Given these concerns, the journal has been labeled as "Suspected Predatory Journal" pending further investigation. We advise readers to approach the journal's content post-2021 with additional skepticism and caution, particularly papers published with the DOI prefixes 10.53555 and 10.47750 from 2022 onward. 116.	Cahiers Magellanes-NS	1624-1940	Cahiers Magellanes-NS (INVALID/FAKE/STOLEN)	Suspected Predtory Jouranl (2024-08-30) Cautionary Notice: Journal Under Review. PSiref has identified concerns regarding a journal that appears to be associating itself with the identity of the established journal, "Cahiers Magellanes" (ISSN 1624-1940) published by the Association Magellanes.	1624-1940

				Observations Include: 1) Journal Name: This journal uses a name very similar to the established French journal Cahiers Magellanes with the exception of adding "-NS". The abbreviation "NS" in a journal title is very often used to indicate "New Series". Without providing any clarification to this abbreviation by the journal's website, the reader is left to assume this is the meaning. 2) Website Concerns: A website (https://magellanes.com/index.php/CMN/index) has been noted for its deceptive similarities to the genuine journal (https://magellanes.net/book-series/cahiers-magellanes/). It uses a web address that is highly similar with the actual journal (.com vs .net) 3) ISSN Misrepresentation. It falsely advertises on its website the print ISSN identifier belongs to their journal. There is no record of an ISSN transfer from Association Magellanes to Green Publication. 4) Metadata for this fake / cloned journal is being uploaded to the Crossref repository with the DOI prefix "10.53555". The DOI publisher prefix 10.53555 is listed as "Green Publication". 5) Contact e-mail: A simple/free gmail account is used as the editor contact email (editor.cahiersmagellanes@gmail.com). 6) No Editorial board or Editor in Chief listed on the website. We advise caution and recommend that researchers and readers verify the authenticity of any publications claiming to be from the "CAHIERS MAGELLANES-NS" before engagement. It is suggested to avoid any involvement with this cloned/hijacked journal and its contents until further clarity is achieved.
